Dear Jack:

The August 10, 1970, Wall Street Journal states that FDA "intends next month to publish official standards for the testing of food additives." Have you or any of those receiving a copy of this letter any specific knowledge of the type proposals that may be involved?

Once such proposals are published in the Federal Register, it may be necessary for the Committee to act fairly promptly. Any advance jump we could get concerning this problem should be helpful.

Very truly yours,

TW

Selection of the food additives intended to be known matter, of which I set specific proposals for the FDA project and other of EPA's project, President's Commission on Food Safety and Inspection Service. This appears to be the first to publish.
